Resurrection Easter Sunday (Cycle B):

THE EASTER OFFENSIVE

"Through baptism into His death we were buried with Him, so that, just as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, we too might live a new life." –Romans 6:4

Alleluia! Jesus is risen! The stone is rolled away! The tomb is empty!

The Lord of Life has decided to destroy Satan's culture of death right now on this Easter Sunday, in this Easter season. Our risen Lord has had it with abortion, racism, war, starvation, contraception, and other injustices. He has decided to get several hundred million Catholic Christians in hundreds of thousands of locations throughout the world to stand up to Satan and publicly reject Him and all his works and promises in this culture of death. This massive mobilization of Catholic Christians to launch a major offensive against Satan is called the renewal of baptismal promises.

Many of you may doubt that this is what happens when we renew our baptismal promises. We renewed them last year and in previous years, and nothing seemed to happen on a grand scale. Yet how many Catholics actually knew what they were doing in renewing their baptismal promises? How many took this seriously? Maybe there's much more power in the renewal of baptismal promises than we have ever experienced or imagined. Let us renew our baptismal promises not in "corruption and wickedness" but in "sincerity and truth" (1 Cor 5:8).

Prayer: Father, make me an extremely effective witness for the risen Christ (see Acts 10:41).

Promise: Father, make me an extremely effective witness for the risen Christ (see Acts 10:41).

Praise: "He is not here; He has been raised up" (Lk 24:6). Alleluia!

Is Easter pagan? Challenge: Easter is a pagan holiday. Its timing is based on the full moon and the spring equinox, and it's named after the goddess Ishtar.

Defense: Easter's origins are Jewish. It is the Christian equivalent of Passover. The word Easter is of English origin. Ishtar was worshipped in Mesopotamia (modern Iraq), not England, which is thousands of miles away. Despite sounding similar, the two words are unrelated. The eighth-century British historian Bede claimed that the word Easter came from the name of the month in which it occurred (basically, April). He said this month used to be called Eostur, though this was no longer true in his day. He also thought the month was named after a Germanic goddess who was no longer worshipped. Bede is the only source who mentions this goddess, so he may be incorrect. Regardless, this applies only to the origin of the English word, not the origin of the feast. Its origin is revealed by its name in other languages. In Italian, it's Pasqua; in Spanish, Pascha; in Portuguese, Páscoa; in French, Pâques; in Danish, Paaske; in Dutch, Pasen; in Swedish, Påsk; and so on. All of these derive from the Latin Pascha or Greek Paskha, both of which are words for the Jewish feast of Passover (Hebrew, Pesakh). The event Easter celebrates is the resurrection of Jesus, and it is celebrated in conjunction with Passover because Jesus was crucified at Passover and rose the following Sunday (John 19:14-18, 20:1-20). The reason Easter's timing is based on the full moon after the spring equinox is because that was the timing of Passover on the Jewish calendar. The Law of Moses requires Passover to be celebrated on the fourteenth of the month of Nisan (Lev. 23:5). This is a spring month that contains the equinox, and because the Jewish months begin on the new moon, the fourteenth fell on the full moon. The timing of the feast thus is Jewish, not pagan. What is ultimately important is what Easter signifies today—the resurrection of Jesus—not where it came from.
